Description

Pasilla Bajio is mainly grown and prized for its rich, smoky, mildly hot flavor which is indispensable in mole sauces. The popular "chile negro" pepper. While classified as a hot pepper, Pasilla ("little raisin") has almost no heat. Fruits have a berry, almost herbal, flavor, and strong, upright plants produce heavy yields of uniform, 20-25 cm peppers, thin walled, slender, very dark blackish-green maturing to a dark brown. Very easy to grow, with good resistance to Tobacco Mosaic Virus. Scoville heat units-1,000-2,000.
